

1985 IWD MARCH

The first ever IWD march in San Antonio, Tx

Photo: Judy Abernathy & Susan Guerra, March organizers, in front of Penner's

Photo: Councilwoman María Berriozábal singing with Manuela Sager

Photo: Emma Tenayuca receives a framed 1985 IWD poster after speaking

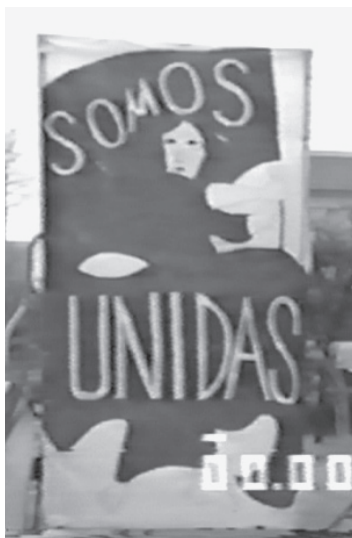

Photo: Graciela I. Sánchez announcing upcoming events

Photo: Terry Ybañez, artist, carrying the IWD banner

This year [1992], more than ever, we must continue to come together on all occasions on the basis of gender, race, sexuality, economic conditions..like-mindedness. We must continue to do so—because the best thing we could do to help the powers that be preserve the status quo that keeps them alive— is to fragment amongst ourselves. By allowing ourselves to get caught up in quarrels over the petty differences of our groups our focus is swayed away from the actions of the government, thereby allowing the grave injustices to continue unhampered. This year we must come together more than ever, to prove that we are ready to fight for change and we will not back down. And above all, to prove that solidarity remains and the desire for peace, equality and justice for all people will never die.

— An excerpt from the article International Woman's Day • March 8, 1992 appearing in the March 1992 issue of La Voz de Esperanza
—Lizzie Martinez, EPJC staff