Magda Chellet, Que en paz descanse

As we were finishing the March issue of La Voz de Esperanza, I learned that Magda Chellet had passed. To wait yet another month to acknowledge her passing did not seem right to me. Magda was important in the Esperanza's history because she was the first instructor of the Esperanza's MujerArtes Clay Cooperative when it opened its doors in the mid-90s. Magda was not only skilled in the production of clay art pieces but she also had a wonderfully creative aesthetic. Her influence on that first group of mujeres in MuerArtes stayed with them and they thrived under her tutelage, even though she was there for a short time. Magda remained close to some of those women who, in some cases, went on to follow their own paths as artists. Ultimately, Magda ran her own ceramic business producing eye-catching and exquisite hand-painted platters, cups and other clay pieces. Her Mexican heritage always shone through and even though a güera she proudly revealed her Mexicanidad in all she did. Magda continued being part of the arts community teaching as an art teacher and advocating and consulting with arts organizations such as Centro Cultural Aztlán. She was part of the Chicano Arts community and lived as a feminist with distinctly spiritual leanings exploring all kinds of experiences and beliefs. She lived her life surrounded by art and "convivio" gathering her friends together in her beautiful home. Her many, many friends and family have lost a soul mate, mother, grandmother and lover of life. The Esperanza board, staff and Buena Gente extend our deepest sympathies to all.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This March issue of La Voz de Esperanza begins a focus on education—alternative (authentic) forms of education that speak to the experiences of children who have not been "seen" in traditional schools or charter schools. An example of an alternative school is the Esperanza's new project, Escuelita de paz y justicia that strives to bring students together to examine who they are and where they come from and how they fit together in this world. Currently censorship of books and curriculums and attacks on efforts to be inclusive demonstrate that the battleground for democracy is, indeed, in how schools are making an effort to validate the lives of all students. Send your articles in to lavoz@esperanzacenter.org Together we can speak out and be seen! — Gloria A. Ramirez

VOZ VISION STATEMENT: La Voz de Esperanza speaks for many individual, progressive voices who are gente-based, multi-visioned and milagro-bound. We are diverse survivors of materialism, racism, misogyny, homophobia, classism, violence, earth-damage, speciesism and cultural and political oppression. We are recapturing the powers of alliance, activism and healthy conflict in order to achieve interdependent economic/spiritual healing and fuerza. La Voz is a resource for peace, justice, and human rights, providing a forum for criticism, information, education, humor and other creative works. La Voz provokes bold actions in response to local and global problems, with the knowledge that the many risks we take for the earth, our body, and the dignity of all people will result in profound change for the seven generations to come.
