Elders from the Westside community come together to discuss the history and culture of the Westside

Companies that Closed the Door in 2024

It's the end of the year in our fair city.
And when a business ends, it's a crying pity.

So, we say goodbye to our favorite café
and beloved shops that have gone away.

Grady's Bar-B-Q has gone up in smoke
but that's not the only restaurant that croaked.

After serving the West Side for 30 years or more,
Acadiana Café finally closed its door.

Capparelli's on Thousand Oaks has pasta way.
And Botika at the Pearl has seen its last day.

Church's Chicken on Basse and West Avenue is now some sort of Food Truck venue.

Two bistros on Fred Road have called it a day;
Deco Pizzeria and Dulce Sueños Café.

Rio Rio Cantina is no longer a tourist destination.
And Hooters has closed its Riverwalk location.

I like to read so it broke my heart,
when they shut the Antiquarian Book Mart.

And for Half-Price Books on Broadway,
the chapter is over, I'm sorry to say.

The Institute of Texan Cultures was full of history.
Now the empty building holds only a memory.

Sam Ash Music Store has played its last note.
And for some Gap Stores, that's all she wrote.

"There's always Jim's" is no longer true
after they closed on Broadway & San Pedro Avenue.

If you needed tools or wanted a lamp repair,
there was no place like Schnabel's Hardware.

Pig Liquors has gone to the pigsty in the sky and to Bed Bath and Beyond, we say bye-bye.

My Big Lots has died and gone to heaven.
Some local stores filed for Chapter 11.

It's hard to find bargains on West Avenue any more after they closed the door on the 99¢ Only Store.

And the Roy Maas Thrift Shop near Basse Road has no more merchandise, it's all been sold.

So, say 'Adios' to Tuesday Morning
while to the other shops, we go into mourning.
