I met María Martin in the late 1970's when we were part of a handful of Chicano radio activists.

Like many pioneers, she was a visionary who created a space for Raza and women through programming and mentorship in a professional field that rarely accepted minorities.

While in the Bay Area in the 1980's we regularly collaborated on projects and news stories with mutual respect and camaraderie.

With her characteristic smile, good nature and professionalism, María graciously penetrated both English and Spanish markets covering a wide array of issues and personalities that chronicled who we are as people in the United States.

María will live in our hearts and will be represented in our work for a long time

Here's a humble tribute in the form of a calavera.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Radio Esperanza, 96.5 KEPJ-LPFM-San Antonio and the Esperanza Peace & Justice Center mourn the loss of a courageous cultural warrior whose lifework leaves a legacy of media empowerment in indigenous and Latinx communities in the U.S. & Latin America. María Martin presente! Que descanse en paz y poder!

María Martin founded the nonprofit GraciasVida Center for Media in Guatemala, where she trained & empowered indigenous women as radio journalists and continued to train journalists in Mexico, Bolivia, Uruguay and Nicaragua.

La Calavera De María Martin

Mira que bonitas flores mira como brilla el sol tan coquetas de colores
what a beautiful glow

En un día como hoy
we lost a la Mariquita
remember her tan bonita
era puro corazón

Simón, mis vatos locos por la ostia del Tejón La Calaca le hecho el ojo and took away her microphone.

Sana, sana colita de rana los angeles le cantaban but la Muerte tan ingrata las cobijas le jalaba

No se aguiten, no es el fin now there's a new generation of young people asking questions gracias a María Martin

Blanca palomita stop flying parate en aquel nopal dinos donde María is watching con sus Bette Davis eyes

VOZ VISION STATEMENT: La Voz de Esperanza speaks for many individual, progressive voices who are gente-based, multi-visioned and milagro-bound. We are diverse survivors of materialism, racism, misogyny, homophobia, classism, violence, earth-damage, speciesism and cultural and political oppression. We are recapturing the powers of alliance, activism and healthy conflict in order to achieve interdependent economic/spiritual healing and fuerza. La Voz is a resource for peace, justice, and human rights, providing a forum for criticism, information, education, humor and other creative works. La Voz provokes bold actions in response to local and global problems, with the knowledge that the many risks we take for the earth, our body, and the dignity of all people will result in profound change for the seven generations to come.
